Statement of Purpose

he Hewlett Foundation, incorporated as a private foundation in the State of California in 1966, was established by the Palo Alto industrialist William R. Hewlett, his late wife, Flora Lamson Hewlett, and their eldest son, Walter B. Hewlett. The Foundation's broad purpose, as stated in the articles of incorporation, is to promote the well-being of mankind by supporting selected activities of a charitable, religious, scientific, literary, or educational nature, as well as organizations or institutions engaged in such activities.

The Foundation concentrates its resources on activities in education, performing arts, population, environment, conflict resolution, and family and community development. Some subareas of interest to the Foundation are listed in the program descriptions that follow. Special projects outside these broad areas may from time to time be approved by the Board of Directors. Although the Hewlett Foundation is a national foundation, with no geographic limit stipulated in its charter, a proportion of disbursable funds has been earmarked for projects in the San Francisco Bay Area.

The Foundation has a strong commitment to the voluntary, nonprofit sector. It will therefore assist efforts to improve the financial base and efficiency of organizations and institutions in this category. Proposals that show promise of stimulating private philanthropy are particularly welcome.

In its grantmaking decisions as well as in its interests and activities, the Hewlett Foundation is wholly independent of the Hewlett-Packard Company and the Hewlett-Packard Company Foundation.

President's Statement

n 1995 the new K-12 initiative of the Foundation's education program took a major step forward when Chairman Emeritus William R. Hewlett pledged $15 million over five years to the Bay Area School Reform Collaborative, a private nonprofit organization formed to advance public school reform in the six counties bordering San Francisco Bay. The Foundation added $10 million of its own over the same period, with the total of both grants then generously matched one-to-one by the Annenberg Foundation. The resulting $50 million is, in turn, to be matched one-to-one by other donors for a total program of school reform equaling $100 million over a five-year period. This Hewlett-Annenberg Challenge Grant is expected to bring lasting and positive change to public schools by encouraging best practices in teaching and learning, high standards for every school's students and adult members, new systems to manage change, partnerships with key stakeholders, and the development of learning communities, especially among teachers.

In addition to and in coordination with this effort, the Foundation is seeking to sustain steady, continuous school renewal through the professional development of teachers and the strengthening of school site and district leadership. Grants in these areas helped local reform programs deepen their teacher development initiatives; enabled a public university to plan a major center for educational leadership; and assisted Bay Area colleges and universities in forming a consortium under the leadership of three California State University schools of education to develop and communicate to teachers best practices information.

The Foundation's granting activity in higher education again focused on broad social challenges as well as specific ones. The invitational program in pluralism and unity continues to respond to the crucial but often divisive issues of racial, religious, gender, and cultural differences in contemporary American society by supporting the efforts of universities and colleges to deal creatively, respectfully, and effectively with diversity. Related grants in 1995 included projects to pivot campus dialogue around artistic expression, to involve students in interracial community development off campus, and to develop undergraduates' skills in campus community building. Interest in the overall learning environment for first- and second-year undergraduates in research-intensive universities has inspired considerable national debate, self study, and constructive action in recent years. Through grants for broad assessments, new pedagogy, curricular experiments, and other focused projects, the Foundation has acted on its belief that research-intensive universities have special strengths to offer students during their first two years in higher education. Grants in 1995 supported programs to create intellectual pathways leading freshmen and sophomores to higher understanding of the nature of research; to develop teaching techniques that connect intellectual skills learned in one domain to others; and to design interdisciplinary courses that more deeply mine a research university's intellectual resources for the benefit of its first- and second-year students.

Liberal arts colleges again benefited from Foundation grants targeted for international studies. New funding backed efforts to bring international awareness into U.S. classrooms through the Internet; studies of countries making the transition to democracy; and projects to develop service learning opportunities abroad. In addition to its long-term association with the Bush Foundation on behalf of private historically black colleges and universities, the Foundation renewed a joint project with the Pew Charitable Trusts on the peer evaluation of teaching in research universities and committed assistance to the future development of Stanford's Center for Academic Integrity.

The Foundation also continues to play an important role in providing consistent, general support for centers studying political and economic ties between the U.S. and Mexico. During 1995 the nineteen centers currently funded (eight in Mexico and eleven in the United States) were encouraged to move quickly to new policy research agendas reflecting the dramatic changes in Mexico's politics and economics and the U.S. public's interest in such bilateral issues as migration, trade, and narcotics trafficking. An example of these new efforts is a forthcoming volume edited by Riordan Roett (director of the Latin American program at The Johns Hopkins University School for Advanced Studies) on the impact of the Mexican debt crisis on Latin America, Europe, and the U.S. The rapid changes in the Mexican political process and their impact on U.S.-Mexico relations are the subject of a study being undertaken by Ronald Hellman, director of the Bildner Center for Western Hemisphere Affairs at the City University of New York. These collaborative projects have both involved such leading Mexican institutions as the Instituto Tecnologico Autonomo de Mexico and El Colegio de Mexico, both current Foundation grantees.

In reviewing the direction of our conflict resolution program in 1995, it is worth noting this area's dramatic expansion. From a few hundred practitioners two decades ago, the field has grown to some 80,000 skilled dispute resolvers who help antagonists generate win-win solutions in all segments of U.S. society: schools, courts, neighborhoods, churches, businesses, trade associations, universities, and public agencies at every level of government. Research finds that agreements reached through these voluntary, nonbinding dispute resolution processes generally prove more durable than judgments imposed by court decree because disputants take personal responsibility for shaping outcomes to their conflicts. Moreover, relationships that might otherwise have been sacrificed in lawsuits, political battles, ill-managed confrontations, and even violence are preserved.

In 1995 several Foundation grants supported practitioner organizations serving low-income and minority communities. The Center for Employment Dispute Resolution in Chicago offers mediation alternatives to reduce the enormous backlog of employment discrimination cases pending before civil rights agencies nationwide. The Victim-Offender Reconciliation Program in Oakland, a project of Catholic Charities of the East Bay, targets youth leaders in poor neighborhoods of the Bay Area for mediation training. Cooperative Solutions in Minneapolis has developed a promising model for delivering family mediation services to low-income rural communities.

The Foundation also sought to stimulate resolution training in professional schools through two notable grants: an award to the Wagner Graduate School of Public Service at New York University to infuse the theory and practice of conflict resolution throughout the master's curriculum; and a grant to the Harvard Law School to establish the Fellowship Program on Law and Negotiation, which will train promising scholars for careers as law faculty specializing in negotiation and conflict resolution.

To further the international application of conflict resolution techniques, Foundation grants were extended to organizations in Latin America, the Far East, Central Europe, South Africa, and the Middle East that open unofficial negotiations between protagonists in deep-rooted conflicts. By developing the political and social context needed for successful diplomacy, these efforts have, by U.S. State Department and United Nations reports, made vital contributions to official negotiations.

Finally, the Foundation made three grants that address critical emerging issues in the conflict resolution field: the need for evaluative research and for the definition of ethical standards. To test claims that conflict resolution techniques produce positive outcomes and better citizens, the Department of Rhetoric and Communication at Temple University is directing the first comprehensive evaluation of school-based conflict resolution programs, while the Carl Vinson Institute at the University of Georgia is analyzing mediator training programs to identify the curricula that produce the best practitioners. A third grant to the Georgetown University Law Center will fund a blue-ribbon commission to examine difficult issues of ethics in the practice of dispute resolution.

In 1995 the Foundation's environment program continued to support organizations that work to reduce reliance on litigation and legislative advocacy in environmental decision-making processes in the West. The leading grant in this category went to the Nature Conservancy for its leadership in the Natural Communities Conservation Planning process in southern California, the most ambitious and complex habitat planning effort ever undertaken and an effort widely regarded as the nation's best hope for reforming federal endangered species protections now under active discussion in Congress. The role of the Conservancy is to coordinate the activities of hundreds of public agencies, land developers, and environmental groups with interests in the imperiled coastal sage scrub habitat primarily located in Orange and San Diego counties on California's southern coastline.

Grants for environmental policy analysis emphasized two areas that are key to long-term environmental health in the West: reform of antiquated western water laws and policies to ensure habitat protection along with extractive uses; and economic development to move rural communities away from resource-depleting activities. In the first area, the Foundation awarded a grant for the production of Cadillac Desert, a documentary film of Marc Reisner's acclaimed book on water development in the western United States. The Foundation also recognized several regional organizations that have found ways to harmonize economic activity with environmental protection. For example, the Community Alliance with Family Farmers Foundation in Davis, California, engages in demonstration projects and research to show how California farming practices can be changed to reduce reliance on toxic pesticides and fertilizers without harming productivity. The Malpai Borderlands Group, an organization of ranchers in southern Arizona and New Mexico, has joined with public agencies and conservation groups to launch a series of projects aimed at restoring the range ecosystem for the benefit of wildlife and cattle alike. Finally, the Rogue Institute of Ashland, Oregon, has pioneered job retraining programs for displaced timber workers in the Pacific Northwest. By increasing public understanding of responsible environmental protection, these grants also seek to reduce hostility toward and promote appreciation of such efforts. Foundation grants have sought especially to reach those citizens who, having lost their livelihoods through the depletion of natural resources and the heightened restrictions on public land use, have been gripped by frustration, fear, and despair regarding their personal and economic futures.

In response to several disturbing national and local trends increasing levels of poverty, growing employee layoffs, and diminishing public sector expenditures for social programs—the family and community development program sought to strengthen the capacity of local institutions to improve the well-being of Bay Area families and the health of their neighborhoods. Within the area of family support and development, the Foundation acted to expand the availability of services including family, adolescent, and child assessment and counseling, and education and life skills training for parents in neighborhoods. The Good Samaritan Family Resource Center, a new grantee, is the only family resource center in San Francisco's Mission District that assists newcomer and immigrant families with children who are either in transition, re-unification, or at risk of becoming dependent on public assistance. Both the Peninsula Community Foundation's Peninsula Partnership for Children, Youth, and Families in San Mateo County and the East Bay Community Foundation's Interagency Children's Policy Council in Alameda County—two public and private sector collaborative projects—will enable community-based family resource centers to improve the well-being of families and children living in poverty in several targeted Bay Area communities.

In 1995 the Foundation continued to assist community development corporations and other local organizations whose mission is to enhance the physical and economic infrastructure of neighborhoods. While funding was concentrated primarily in extremely distressed inner-city neighborhoods, Foundation support of the Sacramento Valley Organizing Community project, a grassroots community development effort in rural northern California, will result in new homes, four new worker-owned job cooperatives, and micro-loans for low-income residents in the Napa and Solano regions north of San Francisco Bay.

Grants were again awarded to community service organizations that build leadership skills, personal development, and placement opportunities among school youth, recent high-school graduates, and college graduates interested in strengthening the social fabric of neighborhoods. For example, by supporting the replication of City Year and Public Allies, two nationally prominent urban service corps organizations, the Foundation will supply local community-based social service agencies and schools with the resources needed to reach several underserved San Jose neighborhoods. The Northern California Grantmakers National Service Task Force and Collaborative Fund, the first regional attempt to pool funds for more than twenty local AmeriCorps programs, will help nurture numerous Bay Area communities through youth service.

The performing arts program continues to fund a wide spectrum of organizations in the disciplines of music, theater, dance, film, and video, and also a number of groups providing services to the arts as a whole. Although the Foundation has always had a stated interest in professional advanced artist training programs, it has only recently begun to build its roster of grantees that offer excellent preprofessional training to youth. The Young Musicians Program of the University of California, Berkeley, one of the most outstanding programs of this kind, extends special opportunities to East Bay youth between eleven and seventeen who show exceptional potential in music. Gifted students from low-income and minority families are given professional training on full scholarships. Each summer the students, selected by audition, participate in an intensive seven-week summer session on the Berkeley campus and then continue their studies throughout the school year with private lessons and academic tutoring aimed at preparation for higher education and professional music careers. YMP graduates consistently gain admittance to highly regarded colleges and universities throughout the nation.

Since the YMP is not included in the University of California's budget, it has embarked on a campaign to raise an endowment whose interest can sustain a substantial percentage of its operating budget by the year 2000. In 1995 the Foundation approved a threeyear grant that will fund a major portion of YMP's operating budget during the endowment campaign and help defray campaign expenses.

In these days of decreasing government and corporate support for the arts, the Foundation is particularly interested in assisting collaborative ventures and supporting groups that share resources or otherwise seek to cooperate. Although the performing arts program's focus is primarily on the San Francisco Bay Area, exceptions are made when more distant organizations submit proposals with a direct link to the local community. In 1995 the Foundation approved a grant to the New York Public Library as the host institution for the Dance Heritage Coalition's Access to Dance Research Resources project, a collaborative effort to preserve and make accessible the historic record of dance in the United States. Since the Bay Area is one of the nation's largest centers of dance and the San Francisco Performing Arts Library and Museum is one of the participating institutions, the project's importance to our region is manifold. Its cooperative aspects serve as a model for improving communication, standards, and the quality of access to performing arts resources. It also provides a basis for national cooperative collecting policies and documentation strategies in the field of dance and the performing arts. Not only will this project help to document the history of an important but ephemeral art form, but it will also make San Francisco's dance heritage readily accessible to citizens across the country.

In 1995 a substantial share of the population program's funding was given to organizations that provide technical assistance to family planning and reproductive health activities in developing countries. New grants for these purposes include awards to AVSC International, the western regional office of the International Planned Parenthood Federation, PATH, and the Asia Foundation. While maintaining considerable continuity with our previous strategy, the Foundation's new guidelines, adopted in 1995, emphasize support of organizations that rely on policy development and public education to strengthen commitment to population issues. Several U.S. organizations received support for these activities, such as the Population Resource Center for educating policymakers and the Earth Summit Watch for global monitoring of the implementation of the Cairo Program of Action. In addition to grants to U.S. organizations, projects were initiated in France, Germany, and the Netherlands to encourage foreign aid donors to advance their population programs.

To understand better the relationship between social and economic factors and fertility and to contribute to the cadre of international population experts, the Foundation continued support of research and training through U.S. and foreign university-based population studies centers. New research on the relationship between women's status and use of family planning services was stimulated through grants to JSI Research and Training Institute and the Global Fund for Women. Although the focus of the population program remains international, awards were also made to organizations concerned with domestic population and family planning policies and service delivery. Organizations receiving grants included Advocates for Youth, the National Family Planning and Reproductive Health Association, and the Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

Three special projects approved by the Foundation's Board in 1995 warrant mention.

- A grant of $500,000 over three years to the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford for a three-part project exploring common values, social diversity, and cultural conflict in the United States. By bringing scholars and experts from a variety of fields together in two major conferences and one extended research effort, the project will study the processes by which common cultural understandings are created, sustained, and evolved and initiate new lines of discussion and debate in academic, public, and policy arenas.
- A grant of $2 million to the University of California, Berkeley, to provide up to 160 doctoral fellowships, ranging across all areas of study, to be awarded over four years to graduate students in the top 10 percent of their disciplines. It is hoped that this grant will assist the university, in a time of decreasing resources and strong competition from peer institutions, to attract the most promising and highly ranked doctoral students in the country.
- A grant of $420,000 over one year for a study by the California Higher Education Roundtable (assisted by the Rand Corporation) of the 1960 California Master Plan for Higher Education, a study all agree is needed in light of California's changing fiscal, economic, cultural, educational, and social circumstances. The overall objective of this study is to help leaders of California's public and private universities and colleges in collaboration with the California Postsecondary Education Commission and the Office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to consider the Master Plan and to propose to the governor and the legislature how it might be modified to take into account the dramatic growth and shifts in state population, demography, and finances that have occurred in recent years.

PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT

Finally, the year 1995 marked a number of changes in the composition of the Hewlett Foundation's Board of Directors. We were greatly saddened by the death of Roger Heyns while on a trip to the Middle East last September. Roger retired as president of the Foundation in 1992, after fifteen years of exceptional service, but continued as an active and valuable Board member and a wise and always helpful counselor to his successor. He leaves an indelible mark on the Foundation, its programs, and its staff.

Arjay Miller, who served as a member of the Foundation's Board for sixteen years, retired at its October 1995 meeting. Over these years he was especially helpful in overseeing the Foundation's investments and in all matters of administration and finance. Moreover, he brought to his position a unique and extended set of experiences with other national foundations that helped inform and clarify issues and programs in which the Hewlett Foundation's Board was interested. We are grateful for his many years of valuable service.

Walter Massey, former provost and senior vice president for academic affairs at the University of California and former director of the National Science Foundation, resigned from the Foundation's Board when he relocated to Atlanta to become president of Morehouse College. Although he had served only briefly, his knowledge of science and education, together with a broad and informed view of the major social issues of our time, enabled him to contribute greatly to the Foundation during his tenure. We wish him much success at Morehouse.

In 1996 the Foundation added two new directors, Richard A. Hackborn and Irving Grousbeck. Mr. Hackborn is a retired vice president of the Hewlett-Packard Company whose last assignment in his thirty-three-year tenure was to oversee HP's Computer Products organization—most notably in its launch of a highly successful printer business. Mr. Grousbeck, a cofounder and former president of Continental Cablevision, Inc., is a venture capitalist, author, and currently lecturer at Stanford Graduate School of Business. Their knowledge of the business world and the breadth of their interests will mesh well with the Board's other directors, all of whom look forward to welcoming them to the Foundation.

On the staff side, we were fortunate in 1995 to attract Dr. J. Joseph Speidel to direct our population program. Dr. Speidel came to the Foundation from Washington, D.C., where he was, for many years, president of Population Action International. One of Dr. Speidel's first tasks was to chart a new course for the population program that would respond to and help shape this rapidly changing field. The results of his efforts, approved enthusiastically by our Board, can be noted in the grant listings that follow.

Conflict Resolution

he conflict resolution program supports work in a wide variety of settings. The Foundation favors general support grants intended to strengthen the institutional capacity of conflict resolution organizations and research centers. The Foundation does not typically provide funding for start-up efforts. Grants are made in six categories.

Theory Development. The Foundation is particularly interested in university-based centers that demonstrate both a strong commitment to systematic, interdisciplinary research on conflict resolution and an ability to contribute to the improvement of conflict resolution practice.

Practitioner Organizations. The Foundation is interested primarily in opportunities to help effective and stable groups increase their capacity for growth and outreach. Grants support new approaches and new applications of conflict resolution methods, the achievement of greater organizational maturity, and efforts to enhance the overall impact of practitioner organizations on the field and on the communities in which they work. Candidates must demonstrate either (1) the capacity to deliver services to minority communities and other constituencies that are underserved by the conflict resolution field; or (2) the capacity to extend federal or state policy initiatives in conflict resolution to a wider audience.

Promotion of the Field. The Foundation supports organizations that (1) educate potential users about conflict resolution techniques; (2) serve the training and support needs of professionals and volunteers in the field of conflict resolution; and/or (3) promote the field as a whole.

Consensus Building, Public Participation, and Policymaking. Recognizing that the origins of conflict can often be traced to defects in methods of communication and participation in policymaking, the Foundation assists organizations that demonstrate means of improving the processes of decision making on issues of major public importance. The Foundation supports efforts to reform policymaking, to prevent large-scale conflict, and to anticipate and preempt clashes among stakeholders. The Foundation's interest is Program Description focused primarily on facilitating and convening organizations that are exploring new ways of approaching contentious public policy issues through collaborative action that addresses the legitimate interests of all involved parties.

International Conflict Resolution. The Foundation supports a limited number of organizations that are working on the international application of conflict resolution techniques and the development of practice-relevant theory related to ethnic, ideological, religious, racial, and other intergroup conflict around the world. Applicants in this area are expected to show significant field-level involvement with conflicts having international ramifications.

Emerging Issues. Beginning in 1996 the Foundation will consider a limited number of proposals addressed to emerging issues in the conflict resolution field. Grants will support a select group of short-term projects responsive to such critical concerns as program evaluation and professional standards. Applicants must demonstrate multi-institutional commitment to the work plan and project governance, as well as compelling evidence of likely impact on the field at large.

Proposals are considered according to the following timetable:

Education

rants in the education program are made to promote longterm institutional development, reform, or renewal in the program areas described below. Proposals of exceptional merit that do not fit directly within the stated areas may be considered if they serve several institutions or otherwise advance the Foundation's interest in improving elementary, secondary, or higher education. Some programs are by invitation, as noted below. For all others, applicants are encouraged to submit a brief letter of inquiry for review before preparing a complete proposal. Grants are awarded on the basis of merit, educational importance, relevance to program goals, and cost-effectiveness.

Higher Education

Grantmaking in this program focuses on higher education in the United States, with the exception of U.S.-Mexico projects, described below. Grants are generally limited to liberal arts colleges and research universities, with emphasis on established institutions with strong records of exemplary work. Ideas that can also be applied to other such institutions are preferred.

Pluralism and Unity (by invitation). Colleges and universities play a significant role in fostering appreciation for both diversity and the common good in our society. The Foundation supports such efforts and seeks to nurture ideas and programs that unify individuals and groups while respecting the differences between and among them. Invited institutions must demonstrate a commitment to these twin goals of pluralism and unity in their own policies, practices, and aspirations.

Liberal Arts Colleges. During 1996 the Foundation will be reviewing the needs and challenges confronting liberal arts colleges in order to develop a program aimed at high-priority objectives that can be advanced with Foundation support. Guidelines for this new program, which will commence in 1997, will be available by request December 1, 1996.

Program Description General Education in Research Universities. The Foundation supports initiatives in research universities to rethink and improve the general education of lower-division undergraduates. Proposals that focus on student outcomes, faculty incentives, teaching innovations, and especially the general education curriculum taken as a whole will be favored over those concerned only with curriculum design.

Tools of Scholarship. A limited number of grants are made to research library "umbrella" organizations (but not to individual libraries) and similar collaborative entities that improve scholarly communication through the cost-effective use of technology.

United States-Mexico Studies (by invitation). The Foundation makes grants to strengthen comprehensive research programs in Mexico and the United States that focus on the varied relationships between these countries. Of particular interest are broad-based centers of research, usually at leading academic institutions, whose work improves communication between consumers and providers of policy research, encourages cooperation with other research programs in both countries, and addresses regional and local concerns. Selected grants are made to specialized projects that complement the efforts of more comprehensive institutions and programs.

Historically Black Private Colleges and Universities. In partnership with the Bush Foundation, the Foundation supports an ongoing program of grants for capital needs and faculty development at private black colleges and universities. This program is administered by the Bush Foundation.

Elementary and Secondary Education

Grants in the K-12 area are generally limited to California programs, with primary emphasis on public schools in the San Francisco Bay Area. Proposals are expected to aim for systemic significance in an effort to advance educational reform. In this program the Foundation favors schools, school districts, colleges, universities, and groupings of these entities. Third parties may be considered when a school or district is an advocate and a beneficiary of their work. The Hewlett and Annenberg foundations in May 1995 jointly awarded a $50 million, five-year matching challenge grant to the Bay Area School Reform Collaborative for public school reform in the counties of San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Alameda, Contra Costa, and Marin. Programs that reinforce the reform objectives of the Collaborative will be given highest priority among the other Foundation grants in the categories described below.

The Teaching Career. The Foundation supports programs carried out by colleges, universities, school districts, or other agencies in partnership with schools dedicated to strengthening the profession of teaching and to improving teachers' career preparation and professional development. The Foundation seeks to support new and effective approaches to preservice training, initiation into classroom practice, continued development, and professional standards to enhance teacher effectiveness and the career attractiveness of teaching.

School Site and District Leadership. The Foundation supports efforts to build leadership and management skills among public school superintendents, district staff, and school principals and, when integral to a school reform strategy, among school board members, teachers, and school teams. In adopting this emphasis, the Foundation explicitly recognizes the growing challenge of school leadership and management in sustaining school reform, the importance of building coherent strategies from a set of reform options, the value in applying skills developed in other areas to schools, and the need to strengthen leaders and managers as professionals on whom much of the success of school reform depends.

Educational Policy. The Foundation funds organizations and efforts that promise to contribute significantly to policy studies affecting school reform and improved public elementary and secondary education nationally and in California.

The Foundation formerly awarded grants to support schoollinked services and school reform at transitions, but these program areas have been eliminated as ongoing funding categories.

The Foundation will not consider requests to fund student aid, construction, equipment and computer purchases, education research, basic scientific research, health research, or health education programs. In general, the Foundation discourages requests benefiting only individual institutions except as these may explicitly relate to stated Foundation objectives.

Environment

he Foundation focuses environmental grantmaking on the American West, where archaic resource management practices and surging population growth threaten fragile ecosystems from the temperate rainforests of the Pacific Northwest to the arid rangelands of the Colorado Plateau. The goals of the program are to increase the fund of policy options available for addressing resource and growth management problems in the region; to improve the quality of public debate surrounding these issues; and to promote community-based problem solving that achieves equitable and sustainable economic development without sacrificing environmental values.

The strategy for achieving these goals is fourfold: (1) support the development and dissemination of nonpartisan policy analysis that offers constructive options to contending positions; (2) promote efforts to improve public awareness of and understanding about environmental conditions in the region; (3) encourage experimentation with methods other than litigation and legislative advocacy for achieving environmental solutions; and (4) emphasize sound economic development as integral to environmental preservation in the West. The Foundation retains an interest in selective land acquisition projects and reserves a portion of the environment program budget for exceptional organizations whose work does not necessarily reflect a Western focus.

Grants are directed to organizations working on issues that affect the fragile ecosystems lying west of the 100th meridian, the traditional boundary demarcating the arid West from the temperate Eastern weather zone of North America. Specifically, grants are awarded for work in Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, Wyoming, British Columbia, and Alberta. Support is also considered for work on U.S.-Mexico border environmental issues in the U.S. Southwest and bordering Mexican states.

The Foundation emphasizes general support grants aimed at building the institutional capacity of highly promising nonprofits that may lack the ability to generate unrestricted support from Program Description memberships, sales of materials, and other sources. The specific components of the program are as follows.

Policy Analysis. The Foundation supports organizations that produce policy-oriented studies on important environmental issues affecting the region. Candidates for support should present the following characteristics: a reputation for intellectual rigor and objectivity, an interdisciplinary staff, a variety of widely circulate pub-lications and other products, and a demonstrable capability to influence policy outcomes.

Education of Decision Makers and the General Public. The Foundation supports organizations engaged in the broad dissemination of nonpartisan information on Western environmental issues to decision makers and the general public.

Decision-Making Processes. The Foundation assists organizations that demonstrate, document, or study how environmental decision-making processes could be improved in the West. Support is primarily focused on organizations engaged in these processes.

Rural Communities and the Environment. The Foundation supports organizations working on the integration of rural community development and environmental protection through scientific research, economic development ventures, and other projects of regional significance.

Growth Management in Metropolitan Areas. Recognizing that unchecked patterns of growth in the urban and suburban West have accelerated the degradation of biological and physical systems throughout the region, the Foundation will, in 1996, begin awarding grants to organizations that seek to improve growth management in these metropolitan areas through strategies involving natural resource protection and awareness of carrying capacity.

Land Preservation. In exceptional cases, the Foundation supports efforts on a national scale to acquire or preserve unique, ecologically significant land in the West.

In order to avoid unprofitable effort on the part of applicants, we emphasize that the environment program does not support proposals in the following areas: basic research; capital construction; conferences, symposia, or workshops; environmental education curricula (K-12 or adult); and museum facilities, exhibits, or programs. Similarly, this program does not make awards to individuals, organizations outside the United States, local land trusts, or groups that utilize community organizing, advocacy, or litigation as a central strategy for achieving organizational aims.

Family and Community Development

he Foundation's family and community development program primarily supports organizations that serve San Francisco Bay Area communities. In addition, it provides assistance to a limited number of national support organizations whose work directly benefits local and regional efforts. The program places priority on activities that strengthen families and their communities through support of capacity building, replication of promising models, community organizing, indigenous and minority leadership development, and relevant policy analysis and evaluation research. Grants are made in five categories.

Community Development. The Foundation supports the efforts of community-based organizations working to revitalize the economic, physical, social, and human capital of low-income communities through an integrated range of activities: planning, job creation, small business assistance, commercial revitalization, and cultural development. As a part of its interest in encouraging concentrated community revitalization work that will generate significant and sustainable results, the Foundation will consider requests that focus on specific geographic neighborhoods.

Family Support and Development. The Foundation funds programs that strengthen and improve the functioning of families and enhance the healthy development and general welfare of children and youth, particularly neighborhood-based efforts that contribute to community revitalization. It places priority on efforts that allocate resources and organize services in order to increase the economic stability and long-term success of families.

Responsible Fatherhood. Commencing in 1996, the Foundation will support programs that engage or reengage fathers in parenting and the support of the family. Emphasis will be placed on efforts that prevent too-early parenthood for young men, prepare men for the responsibilities of fatherhood, and foster the emotional connection between fathers and their children.

Program Description Affordable Housing. The Foundation does not make grants for capital needs, but instead supports programs that enable housing development corporations to develop, preserve, and effectively manage new and existing units of affordable housing for low-income families and individuals, including those with special needs. The Foundation is particularly interested in efforts that promote the development of permanent housing integrated with social and economic development services.

Community Service. The Foundation supports both national and community-based K-12 service program models that involve young people in strengthening a neighborhood's ability to respond to critical human development, public safety, and environmental issues. It also extends support to a limited number of efforts that advance the community service field through coalition building, quality assurance, and resource coordination.

Limited program funds dictate that only a few of the requests reviewed can be supported. To help avoid unprofitable effort on the part of applicants, we call attention to the fact that the Foundation does not make grants in the following fields: physical or mental health; law and related fields; criminal justice or juvenile delinquency; drug and alcohol addiction; or the problems of the elderly and the handicapped. The Foundation's interest in programs related to homelessness is restricted to those that emphasize specifically the realignment of existing community development and human service systems to respond more effectively to the needs of the homeless population. These exclusions derive not from a lack of sympathy with the needs in these fields but from the Foundation's determination to focus its resources.

Performing Arts

he Hewlett Foundation's performing arts program makes grants to classical music ensembles, professional theatre and opera companies, and ballet and modern dance organizations for artistic, managerial, and institutional development. The Foundation supports presenting organizations, arts councils that serve Bay Area communities, and service organizations that assist arts organizations in all disciplines. It also makes grants to groups providing a variety of services to Bay Area nonprofit film and video organizations.

Artist training programs and efforts to increase career opportunities for artists continue to be of interest to the Foundation. It will also consider proposals designed to increase the effectiveness of the field as a whole.

In keeping with the need for long-term, flexible support, the Foundation will recommend, whenever appropriate, that there be a matching requirement. The Foundation often recommends that a portion of the matching funds be applied to endowments or cash reserves, rather than to current operating expenses, to help ensure the long-term financial stability of its grantees.

The Foundation gives preference to independent nonprofit Bay Area organizations with an established record of artistic and administrative achievement, audience support and general audience appeal, and a realistic plan for artistic and organizational development.

The Foundation groups performing arts recommendations by discipline for presentation to its Board of Directors. This allows the Foundation to become familiar with the characteristics and needs in each field. It also assists in planning and in the consistent application of criteria. While the Foundation does not expect to be able to adhere rigidly to the following schedule, it will make every effort to do so.

Program Description

Presenting organizations, arts councils, and multidisciplinary service organizations should contact the Foundation to determine the appropriate deadline.

The Foundation regrets that it cannot consider requests in the following areas: the visual or literary arts; radio, television documentaries, or other films and videos; the humanities; elementary and secondary school programs; college or university proposals; community art classes; folk arts, including crafts and popular music; recreational, therapeutic, and social service arts programs; and individuals. The Hewlett Foundation does not support one-time events, such as seminars, conferences, festivals, or cultural foreign exchange programs, and does not provide assistance with touring costs for performing companies.

Population

apid population growth continues to be a significant worldwide problem, despite the impact organized family planning programs have had in reducing fertility. The Foundation has three primary goals in this area: to increase the involvement of the public and private sectors, the media, and educational institutions in population issues; to improve the delivery of family planning and related reproductive health services; and to evaluate and help replicate the impact of educational and economic development activities on fertility. U.S. population issues are also of concern but represent a smaller proportion of the Foundation's annual program budget.

Within these three priorities, the Foundation supports a range of activities. Specific interests include the following areas:

- Policy-oriented research and educational activities that inform policymakers both in the U.S. and abroad about the importance of population issues and the relevance of demographic change to other aspects of human welfare. The Foundation emphasizes efforts to expand the availability of financial resources and, through training, human resources to address population issues.
- Programs that develop and disseminate the knowledge and techniques needed to improve the quality and effectiveness of family planning activities. Support is also provided to evaluate the cost and practicality of programs that address broader reproductive health concerns in conjunction with family planning.
- Human development activities and interventions that affect fertility, such as programs which enhance women's economic and educational opportunities, improve their legal rights, diminish gender inequities, and foster female self-determination. Preference will be given to programs that include assessment of the cost and practicality of larger scale replication and evaluation of their impact on fertility behavior.

Program Description Grants are made primarily to U.S.-based organizations, but there are no geographic limitations on support for research, family planning projects, or training. While the focus of such activities will be on developing countries, selected U.S. organizations that engage in highly leveraged domestic family planning activities also remain eligible for support.

The Foundation generally provides organizational, rather than project, support and favors those organizations that seek to bridge the gap between research, policy formulation, and program implementation. The Foundation does not ordinarily support bio-medical research on reproduction.

Advice to Applicants

ecause the foregoing program descriptions are brief and are under continuing review, the most efficient means of initial contact with the Hewlett Foundation is a letter of inquiry, addressed to the president. The letter should contain a brief statement of the applicant's need for funds and enough factual information to enable the staff to determine whether or not the application falls within the Foundation's areas of preferred interest or warrants consideration as a special project. There is no fixed minimum or maximum with respect to the size of grants; applicants should provide a straightforward statement of their needs and aspirations for support, taking into account other possible sources of funding.

Letters of application will be briefly acknowledged upon their receipt, but because the Foundation prefers to operate with a small staff, a more detailed response may in some cases be delayed. Applicants who have not had a substantive reply after a reasonable period of time should feel free to make a follow-up inquiry.

The Foundation recognizes that significant programs require time to demonstrate their value. It is therefore willing to consider proposals covering several years of support. While the Foundation will entertain specific projects in its areas of interest and will on occasion provide general support for organizations of special interest, it expects to work primarily through organizations active in its main programs. One exception is the family and community development program, under which the Foundation makes some small grants for specific projects that meet an immediate community need. Like most foundations, the Hewlett Foundation is unwilling to assume responsibility for the long-term support of any organization or activity.

All inquiries are reviewed first by the relevant program officer. He or she will either (1) in consultation with the president, decline a request that seems unlikely to result in a project the Foundation can support; (2) request further information if a decision cannot be made on the basis of the initial inquiry; or (3) present the request to the rest of the staff for discussion. Applicants who receive a favorable response to their initial inquiry will be invited to submit a formal proposal. Special supporting materials may be requested in some cases, but normally the proposal should include:

- A concise statement of the purpose of the request, its significance or uniqueness in relation to other work being done in the field, and the results sought.
- A budget for the program; an indication of other prospective funding sources and the amount requested of each; and a statement of the sponsoring organization's total budget and financial position. Applicants should indicate how they would continue a successful program once support from the Hewlett Foundation ceases.
- The identity and qualifications of the key personnel to be involved.
- A list of members of the governing body.
- Evidence of tax-exempt status.
- A statement to the effect that the proposal has been reviewed by the applicant's governing body and specifically approved for submission to the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation.

Normally the Foundation will not consider grants for basic research, capital construction funds, grants in the medical or healthrelated fields, or general fund-raising drives. It will not make grants or loans to individuals or grants intended directly or indirectly to support candidates for political office or to influence legislation.

Grants must be approved by the Board of Directors, which meets quarterly. Meeting dates are available upon request, but applicants should realize that even proposals which are to be recommended for Board approval cannot in every case be reviewed at the first meeting following their receipt. All inquiries and proposals are reported to the Board, including those declined at the staff level.

THE WILLIAM AND FLORA HEWLETT FOUNDATION

Report of Independent Accountants

The William and Flora Hewlett Foundation

To the Board of Directors of

MARCH 6, 1996

In our opinion, the accompanying statement of position and the related statements of activities and changes in unrestricted net assets and of cash flows present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of The William and Flora Hewlett Foundation (the Foundation) at December 31, 1995 and 1994, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the years then ended in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Foundation's management; our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits. We conducted our audits of these statements in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards which require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements, assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, and evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for the opinion expressed above.

Notes to Financial Statements December 31, 1995 and 1994

| NOTE 1Investments    | Investments represent a diversified portfolio of public and private equity anddebt investments and investments in various real estate partnerships and ven-ture capital funds. Equity securities primarily consist of a diversified portfolioof stocks. Fixed income securities primarily consist of U.S. government, fed-eral agency, and corporate bonds and notes.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|--------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                          | Equity and fixed income securities are carried at market value as determined by quoted market prices. Investments in real estate partnerships and venture capital funds are accounted for under the equity method. Dividend and interest income are accrued when earned. The unrealized increase (decrease) in the market value of investments held at year end is determined by using market values at the beginning and end of the year, or on the date acquired if purchased or contributed to the Foundation during the year. Realized gains (losses) on sales are determined based on cost, with cost being determined on a specific identification basis. The net gain on investment portfolio includes realized gains of $77,655,000 in 1995 and $76,446,000 in 1994. |
|                          | The Foundation held 4,278,600 shares of Hewlett-Packard Company stock(approximately 0.8% of that Company's total outstanding shares) with a mar-ket price of $83.75 per share at December 31, 1995. At December 31, 1994, theFoundation held 3,943,000 shares with a market price of $49.9375 per share.(Shares and market price per share have been adjusted for the two-for-one stocksplit in April 1995.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|                          | Funds in the amount of $54,382,000 are committed for future investment in the real estate and venture capital portfolio.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| NOTE 2Grants Payable | Grant requests are recorded as grants payable when they are approved by theBoard of Directors. Some of the grants are payable in installments, generallyover a three-year period.
